Cookie policy

Cookies help you get the most out of the pannonica.eu website. We use cookies to analyse visits to the website, so that we can make improvements and provide you with relevant information. That way, you can find what you are looking for more quickly and are shown information specially selected for you.

What types of cookies are there?

There are different types of cookies:

- Basic cookies, which ensure that the website works properly for example controlling the size of the display on your computer or tablet.
- Personal cookies, which save selections made on the site (such as the language etc.).

What happens if I switch cookies off?

If you set your browser to reject all cookies, the website may no longer function optimally. You can easily remove cookies via your browser. When you remove cookies, you will receive a new message again asking you for your approval. This is because we can no longer find your saved settings, in order to provide suitable services from pannonica.eu